Villa Elia's exquisite position on a gently sloping hillside, nestling in the olive trees, gives ample privacy as it is completely hidden from the road. The private swimming pool, positioned on the edge of the hillside and just beneath the main terrace, enjoys some of the most fabulous views to be found of Skopelos town and harbour. The main entrance leads to a very spacious open plan kitchen and dining room. The floors are of mellow terracotta tiles and the ceilings are high-pitched and wood beamed. A roomy well equipped kitchen with breakfast bar sits off to the side and has its own door to the terrace for ease of serving al fresco meals. The sizable dining table, comfortable sofas and a fireplace create a warm and delightful space. The French doors lead to a veranda with lots of space to relax or take outdoor meals, and a wonderful view.

The main house is built on three levels, with the sitting room in the middle. A half flight of stairs from the entrance door leads down to a twin bedroom and a sea facing terrace and a bathroom with shower/WC next door.
