Palazzo Brandano

Italy - Tuscany countryside - Crete Senesi - Petroio

2 bis 22 persons – 1 standard double – 1 Superior double, suitable for wheelchairs – 2 superior double – 1 Junior Suite – 3 Superior Suites – 1 Executive Suite – cosy lounge with bar – restaurant – large terrace

In the tiny medieval village of Petroio amidst Southern Tuscany's soft green hills and valleys One will find a gem: Palazzo Brandano. In a sandstone fortress, Palazzo Brandano manages to blend excellent service with the coziness of village life. It has one narrow road that meanders past medieval walls that date back to the 12th Century. And aside from the occasional satellite dish, it looks exactly as it did hundreds of years ago. There are no busloads of Tourists and no ceramic shops seeking for attention. It is an "old world" working village that is so authentic it's almost surreal. After careful restoration and renovation, the Palazzo formerly belonging to a noble Italian family, opened in April 2006. Palazzo Brandano named after "Il Brandano", Bartolomeo Garosi a Saint from the renaissance born in Petroio comprises beautiful suites, spacious rooms and a charming selection of apartments within steps of the Palazzo, all restored in authentic Tuscan style. Luxuriously and comfortably furnished, wooden beams, terracotta floors, travertine tiles, cream-colored walls and beautiful fabrics give there unique flair and recall memories of former times. Palazzo Brandano is adorned with hand crafted frescos, replicas of paintings of famous Italian renaissance artists. "Il Brandano" bar, enoteca, restaurant and a stunning terrace with panoramic views over the countryside serve traditional Tuscan cuisine. Every suite, room, and apartment is decorated with handcrafted frescos, replicas of famous Italian Renaissance artists and gives the Palazzo its unique and authentic flair. Each unit is named after one of the known Renaissance artists, so our guests are resting in "Botticelli" or "Michelangelo". The stunningly designed bathrooms are equipped with either luxury
