Owned by an aristocratic family since the 17th century, this historic estate, on the island of Cephalonia (Greece) offers an elegant manor house for holiday lettings to discerning travelers. The estate blends the ongoing agricultural activity with regional tradition and culture, while it combines the authenticity of the past with the art of good living. Special care is taken in order to preserve the natural surroundings. The area around the olive mill has been planted with indigenous trees, flower bushes and shrubs of the Greek flora. These, together with the existing ancestral olive trees and Italian cypresses form a pleasant Mediterranean landscape. The painstakingly restored estate consists of a 19th century stone olive mill and its old oil press room, a 25.000 sqm olive grove with trees more than 400 years old and recently built Olive Grove Villa.

The self catering villa with more service than usual, is an elegant manor house, on a plot of land adjacent to the estate with a total accommodation for up to 6 guests. The present owners, with an obsession for detail, have turned this idyllic spot into a refined holiday retreat, for visitors who are seeking a hideaway marinated in romance, calm, unspoilt natural surroundings as well as elegant and relaxed accommodation.
